

Clergymen of the Church of England

(...) INTRODUCTION In March, 1993, as Dean of Westminster, I dedicated a memorial to Anthony Trollope in a window in Poets Corner. Not before time. The Athens News, reporting the event with a misprint that might have delighted him, referred to me as the bear of Westminster. Trollope, no expert on bears, knew something of the Abbey and was a connoisseur of deans. Two years before writing these essays he had petitioned for a memorial to Thackeray in Poets Corner, and nine years earlier (in The Warden) he describes how Mr Harding, with a day to fill in London, attends morning service in the Abbey. Mr Harding was not much edified by the nature of the service. The minor(...)
