

Distant Voices

In her second volume of short stories, which follows the hugely successful Encounters, Barbara Erskine has created a compelling world of love, betrayal, suspense and grief. A biographer investigating a tragic death hears voices from the past drawing her towards the truth...A nineteenth century parsons daughter is caught up in the excitement and romance of a smuggling intrigue...A young boy from a deprived background finds his own haven in the wastelands of the inner city...Contemporary, historical, spooky, and humorous - there are over thirty delightful stories, each one guaranteed to capture the readers imagination, and all demonstrating Barbara Erskines unique powers as a storyteller.
