

No Need for a Ladder: A Collection of Haiku inspired by Monterey Bay

No Need for a Ladder is a collection of 25 haiku inspired by Monterey Bay, California, a place where seals, sea lions, sea gulls and fishermen share the coastline. mid-March: sea lions exchange glances on the porch of a houseboat Penetrating and curious, the poems in this collection are poetry of place. They focus on that which is easily neglected, left unobserved, in an effort to examine how various cultural, spiritual and ecological relationships intertwine and unwind in specific moments in time, leaving the world wholly unchanged yet completely different from what it once was. drifting snowflakes ... the space between what once was and what is yet to be Like all writing, Kate Skylars collection is inspired and instructed by the poetry and writing of others who came before her. In particular, No Need for a Ladder is influenced by Matsuo Basho, Fernando Pessoa, Anais Nin and Jim Harrison. fishing boat pulls in-- three pelicans wait with their mouths open
