

Pygmalion

When Prof. Henry Higgins declares that he can turn anyone into a socialite simply by teaching them to speak and act as if they were high society, his challenge is immediately accepted. He is given Eliza Doolittle, a poor cockney flower girl, to shape and mold into a duchess to be presented at a garden party. But Ms. Doolittle is headstrong and quite self-possessed. Can Higgins win his wager in this brilliant satire on class and gender treatments from the mind of George Bernard Shaw?
