

The Great Learning & The Hsiao Ching

The Great Learning The Great Learning was one of the Four Books in Confucianism. Excerpt: The ancients who wished to illustrate illustrious virtue throughout the empire, first ordered well their own States. Wishing to order well their States, they first regulated their families. Wishing to regulate their families, they first cultivated their persons. Wishing to cultivate their persons, they first rectified their hearts. Wishing to rectify their hearts, they first sought to be sincere in their thoughts. Wishing to be sincere in their thoughts, they first extended to the utmost their knowledge. Such extension of knowledge lay in the investigation of things. The Hsiao Ching; or, the Book of Filial Duty A translation of the Hsiao Ching, a classic text which defines the web of Confucian social relationships. It was written about 400 BCE, about a century following the death of Confucius. It is generally held to be the work of an unknown pupil of Tseng Tsan, the disciple of Confucius, to whom is attributed the famous Confucian classic known as The Greater Learning. Few books have enjoyed greater popularity amongst all classes in China than The Book of Filial Duty.
