

Zhang Yimou: from a man of Northwest China to the Chief Director of the 2008 Beijing Olympic Games (Chinese Edition)

Zhang Yimou, born in 1951 in Xian, Shaanxi Province, once went to settle down in the countryside and worked at a state-owned cotton textile factory. He graduated from the Photography Department of the Beijing Film Academy in 1982. Zhang Yimou, Chen Kaige and Tian Zhuangzhuang are the representative directors of the fifth generation of Chinese cinema. Zhang Yimou was once the director of photography for two films One and Eight and Yellow Earth, and directed many famous films, such as Red Sorghum, Raise the Red Lantern, The Story of Qiuju, Hero, Ambush from All Sides and Curse of the Golden Flower. He is a standard-bearer of the Chinese cinema, leading it on a march to the outside world. In 2008, the opening and closing ceremonies of the 2008 Beijing Olympic Games with Zhang Yimou as the chief director were great successes. His achievements have been recognized not only in China, but throughout the whole world.
